How it works Once the search operation is initialized, Multiple Searcher launches the default web browser installed and opens a tab for each selected search engine, showing results for the keyword you entered. Unfortunately, it doesn't offer a more optimized method to do this, so if you select all search engines, for example, the application will open 16 new tabs in the web browser, which might slow it down significantly. Evidently, you can also do this by opening one tab at a time to look up information. Evaluation and conclusion We haven't come across any stability issues in our tests, thanks to the fact that the program didn't freeze, crash or prompt error notifications. It executed search operations rapidly while remaining light on system resources consumption, so it didn't hamper the computer's performance. To wrap it up, Multiple Searcher is a software tool which can perform keyword searches on up to 16 search engines at a time by opening up to 16 tabs in your default web browser.
